Dogs have [1] _____ unique relationship with man's evolutionary history — one of companionship. This poses a moral dilemma of being responsible for their welfare but also confronting the vagaries of their evolution from wolves and their territorial instincts. While by no means a conundrum unique to India, much of the world has drawn the line by de-recognising the rights of stray animals: if leashed and registered, human custodians are [2] _____ to take care of them. If not, the state — as a last resort — is encumbered to euthanise them, in the interest of public health. The Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (PCA) Act and the Animal Birth Control (Dogs) Rules, 2001 (being updated), while aimed [3] _____ limiting the stray population, do nothing to improve public safety. The [4] _____ draft rules, or the Animal Birth Control Rules, 2022, only put forth procedural changes in sterilisation and vaccination, permit only "incurably ill and mortally wounded" dogs to be euthanised, which is what existing rules permit, and make leaders of resident welfare associations responsible for feeding strays [5] _____ pockets. The PCA and ABC rules acknowledge that unchecked strays must be restrained.
